Introduction

In order to become easily identifiable, we must be consistent in our communications and protect the image of the International Canoe Federation (ICF) and Canoeing. By standardising our events and our product we will reinforce public awareness.

This Look& Style Guide is for the ICF Family and its stakeholders in order to provide guidance for the “look” of Canoeing and the use of ICF logo and terminologies.

This guide might not anticipate every possible situation. If you have any questions or would like to obtain quality copies and digital images of the logo, please feel free to contact ICF at catherine.wieser@canoeicf.com or info@canoeicf.com.

The ICF owns the rights to all logos and canoeing names mentioned in the document. The logo and names cannot be altered or amended in anyway.

Section One – ICF Logo

I. Official ICF Logo

The ICF logo represents the governing body for the sport of Canoeing and is used to promote our sport.

II. Logo Significance

The individual lines represent the diversity of our canoeing disciplines all moving in the same direction: Canoe Sprint, Paracanoe, Canoe Slalom, Wildwater Canoeing, Canoe Marathon, Ocean Racing, Canoe Polo, Dragon Boat and Canoe Freestyle.

The logo transcends the fluidity, buoyancy, speed and dynamic nature of the sport which is represented in the character of the lines, the blue represents water and the natural environment of our sport. Our logo, like our sport, is youthful, modern, cool, and always moving forward.

III. Typography

Etelka light pro and Etelka light pro-BOLD are the only fonts allowed for the script "international canoe federation" for the logo.

IV. General Logotype

The entire logo should be used as one element. It must not be altered or changed in anyway (including homothety)

V. General Guidelines

The International Canoe Federation (ICF) logo is the primary representation of the organisation. This logo is a unique trademark used to identify our events and communication materials. When using the logo remember to:

1. Never use the logo below its minimum size restriction;
2. Never alter the logo in any way. The logo may not be redrawn, changed or distorted;
3. Use the correct amount of free space around the logo;
4. Use the correct logo colour combinations;
5. Never create the logo using an alternate font;
6. Do not use any other script or titles, sponsors, third parties associated or seemingly associated with the logo.

VI. Specifications of Usage

A. Positioning of logo

When used as the main visual on a document, the logo should be centered on the page.

When used for competitions the logo must be placed at the top left of all publications or website in a prominent position and without any associated third party logos. Generally, the Event or NF logo would be on the right hand side. The ICF logo should be the largest or equal size to any other logo on the visual material.

B. Size Restrictions

Minimum size: To maintain the integrity and quality of the logo, a minimum size has been set. Do not use the logo smaller than 25.4mm (1.00 inch) in width on a website page, A3, A4, legal or letter sizes.

C. Spacing

To protect the logo's integrity and legibility, as much "free space" as possible should surround the logo. Free space is an area that contains no text and graphic elements such as imagery, secondary logos and symbols.

The diagram below shows the minimum amount of free space that should surround the logo. The rules regarding free space apply to any background. For instance, if the logo is produced on a photograph, then it should be placed on an area of the photograph that will not interfere with or distract from the logo.

Spacing rules

10 % of free space on the right side of logo

18 % of free space at the top & bottom of logo

For example

If you use for a document a version of the logo that is 25 cm X 17 cm, you will need to leave the following spacing around the logo.

At least 2.5 cm (10% of 25 cm) of free space on the right side of the logo.

A least 3 cm (18% of 17 cm) of free space at the top and bottom of the logo.

At least 4 cm (16% of 25 cm) of free space on the left side of the logo.

D. Colour Template

It is important to maintain maximum control over the ICF colour. For offset printing, the logo should be reproduced using these methods:

The specifications for Pantone®, CMYK and RGB colour applications.

Pantone® 7461 C
CMYK 81-41-0-0
RGB R29, G130, B197

E. Colour Combinations

Positive use: it is important to maintain maximum control over ICF's logo colour. For offset printing, the logo should be reproduced using these methods:

- When four-colour applications (CMYK) are required, use process mix C81, M41, Y0, K0.
- When two-colour or single-colour applications (spot) are required: use Pantone 7461 C
- For Web/multimedia usage the logo should be reproduced in the RGB equivalent of: R29, G130, B197.

Negative Use: the logo may be produced in black or white when used on ICF blue, colour or dark background. You must get ICF's approval for negative use.

F. Black and Grey Applications

The colour version of the logo should be used at all times. In cases where the colour version cannot be used, you must get ICF's approval to use the black or grey applications.

Logo should be reproduced on white background. Gray version can be used on colour documents. Black logo on all black/white correspondence.

Black application

As a guide Black and White is used solely for black and white publications.

Grey application

E.g. Grey application can be used for colour documents when bright colours clash with the blue of the logo.

Black/White and Grey Logos must have the ICF approval before use.

G. Use of text with ICF logo

As a guide, the only text that can be used with the logo can be the ICF title events or the Always Moving Forward slogan.

Etelka light pro and Etelka light pro-BOLD are the fonts to be used when possible.

All additional text must be approved by the ICF.

VII. Rules for use with sponsors logos

The logo should not be placed directly adjacent to another company's logo or identifier. The logo and another identifier of any type must be placed within the spacing specified in this Style Guide.

VIII. Logo Usage in Advertising and Publications

If the ICF logo must appear on any printed related matter such as brochures, invitations, and advertisements, it must be in accordance with the specifications mentioned above.

The ICF logo should not misrepresent or mislead any promoter, third party, NF sponsor/supplier in any way. The logo must be clearly divided from all other graphics.

IX. Composite Logo

In certain situations a composite logo can be designed. This consists of the ICF logo, a vertical line and then the local organiser logo (Must be non-connected).

Horizontal Format

The ICF logo should always be on the left side with a solid blue line (ICF Blue) on the right. The width of the line separating the ICF and organiser's logos should be 1 ½ pt. The partner's logo should be of the same size as the ICF logo.

ICF must approve all composite logos.

X. Flags

The ICF's flag should always be on white background and the logo should be hung from left to right.

E.g.

As a guide, the ICF flag can be printed in the following dimensions:

XI. Medals

Back

ICF World Championships: the medals shall be furnished by the ICF at the expense of the Organising Federation.

Design on front side: must always show the ICF logo and the year of the competition

Design on back side:

Option 1: back side is engraved with the title of the event and discipline.

Option 2: should the Organising Committee choose to include the event logo on the back of the medal, that logo must comply with the Guideline for competition titles found in the ICF Look & Style Guide. This option is costlier since it necessitates two moulds.

ICF World Cups: the medals can be furnished by the ICF at the expense of the Organising Federation or purchased locally by organisers. In this latter case, the ICF must approve the design before final production.

Specifications about sizes and ribbon are available in the ICF Protocol Guide or info@canoeicf.com.
