Dear Paddlers,

The SUP2025 Committee is working hard to ensure equipment availability for all athletes during the event. We are currently preparing multiple options, including shipping your own boards, pre-purchasing new boards with exclusive packages, rental, and on-site equipment support, to make participation as smooth as possible.

We are pleased to welcome our first official manufacturer partner, NSP, who has joined our initiative to support the Abu Dhabi World Championship. Through the link below, you can explore pre-purchase, rental, and—soon—post-event purchase options, with more brands to be announced.

Important Reminder:

Due to shipping timelines and manufacturer constraints, quantities are limited. We strongly recommend completing your registration and securing your equipment as early as possible.

Registration

Board purchase / rental

For those who do not wish to use the options above, we strongly encourage arranging the shipment of your own equipment well in advance, as racing boards have extremely limited availability within the UAE and cannot be guaranteed locally.

Further information and detailed instructions will be shared soon on the SUP2025 website. If you have specific equipment needs or questions, please feel free to reach out to us directly.

Best regards,
SUP2025 Committee

Visa requirements

to the UAE

The United Arab Emirates (UAE) offers a relatively straightforward visa process, especially for citizens of over 70 countries who can either enter visa-free or obtain a visa on arrival. Here's a breakdown of the key points regarding UAE visa requirements and travel information.

Visa-Free Entry

Citizens of certain countries, including many in the GCC (Gulf Cooperation Council), can enter the UAE without a visa for short stays.

Visa on Arrival

Nationals from over 40 countries, including the USA, UK, Canada, and several EU nations, can obtain a visa upon arrival. These visas are typically valid for 30 days. Citizens of some countries can obtain a visa that allows for a stay of up to 90 days upon arrival. Lists of countries eligible for visa on arrival may vary from time to time; therefore, please check with the UAE embassy in your country before travelling to the UAE.

Pre-Arranged Tourist Visas

For those not eligible for visa-free entry or visa on arrival, a pre-arranged visa is required. This can be obtained through a UAE-based airline, a UAE hotel, or a travel agency. Your event’s invitation and assistance can play a crucial role here.

Passports must be valid for at least 6 months from the date of entry into the UAE.

Customs to respect

while in the UAE

While Islam is the official religion of the UAE, the government promoted and enforced non-discriminatory laws and policies for peaceful co-existence, tolerance and religious inclusion. People of more than 200 nationalities reside in the UAE and therefore countless faiths living together, side by side.

UAE is a haven of a diversity of heritage, traditions and customs. These are taken seriously by locals, and tourists should be aware of these in order to respect them. Some customs include actions which need to be followed by tourists, like the do's and don'ts of the country. Respecting the customs and traditions is necessary in avoiding conflicts.

Rules of how to behave in public may be the biggest difference in the culture between locals and tourists:

Public displays of affection are frowned upon and regarded disrespectful to the Emirati customs and culture, due to religious differences. Maintain your public displays of affection to the minimum, anything more than holding hands such as kissing and hugging in public might land you with a hefty fine or in jail.

Taking pictures of people in public is not tolerated, especially of women, military or government facilities, unless at a tourist location.

Attire or clothing is expected to be modest according to the country's dress code. Dressing up decently is the basic requirement in the public places. Dresses and skirts above the knee and skimpy clothes are frowned upon. Even men are expected to dress decently and not go topless. Swimwear for both men and women are only allowed at the private beaches and private swimming pools. Everywhere else, including the public beaches skimpy swimwear is not allowed. Pointing fingers or any obscene hand gesture is considered to be rude and a sign of extreme bad manners.

The entire UAE has zero tolerance for drunk driving. This also applies to holding alcohol or any drug in possession, no matter even in minuscule quantity.
