SPORT INFORMATION

WHITE WATER SLALOM CROSS : A NEW OFFICIAL COMPETITION

Why a new slalom cross format is developed ?

- to welcome new athletes from other canoeing disciplines
- to provide a more accessible competition format
- to open more competition sessions on the Olympic venue
- to present a TV oriented and spectators' friendly competition (easy to follow, spectacular, unpredictable or at least with a spectacular suspense)
- This format has to be easy to develop, easy to organise for National Federations.

Which framework ?

- Head to head, 4 boats competing together a maximum for the final phase
- Kayak boat only, one female and one male event
- Same boat for all at the competition (plastic from recreational market)
- Spectacular start line but fair, ramp when possible
- Course marked with special gates (or obstacles), it imposes a spectacular trajectory with options but using extreme whitewater features of the particular course
- Two symmetric upstream gates on same line or close (athletes chose which one they negotiate)
- Eskimo roll zone
- Time duration around 45 seconds long
- No timing of the head to head series. It is possible that individual time trials are organised to qualify the start field of the head to head phase and built the bracket
- No penalty touch, elimination for for gate (obstacle) missed

Milestones for implementation

- to define the format, rules, and event technical requirements (November 2015 to February 2016)
- in agreement with HOC's, to introduce this event as a demonstration in at least 4 of the 5 2016 ICF Canoe Slalom World cups in replacement of team events
