CANOE SPRINT – A BEGINNER’S GUIDE

In canoe sprint, two types of boats are used: canoe (C) and kayak (K). Canoe sees paddlers compete in a kneeling position using a single-blade paddle. In contrast, a kayak paddler competes in a sitting position using a double-bladed paddle.

Kayak paddlers steer with their feet using a rudder, whereas there is no rudder in a canoe so athletes must use their paddle to steer. As opposed to rowing where boats race backwards, both canoes and kayaks move forwards.

Races take place on a 9m wide flatwater course where boats line up and take off together when the starter signals. The top eight boats from the semi-finals advance to the ‘A’ final, while the boats placing 9th to 16th compete in the ‘B’ final.

The main attraction of canoe sprint is the dynamic and powerful start. Boats go from a still position and dash to top speed in seconds. The shortest distance race is 200m, with the men’s kayak single finishing in about 30 seconds.

The 500m and 1,000m races require strategic pacing and tactical racing against opponents, with the final sprint to the finish line being extremely fierce. Meanwhile, the key to winning the double and four events is the synchronised paddling skills of teams.

TOKYO CANOE SPRINT – AT A GLANCE

- This will be the 20th appearance of canoe sprint at the Olympics. The sport has been in every Games since 1936
- Women's C1 200 and C2 500 will make its Olympic debut. 32 women have entered the C1, while there will be 14 boats contesting the C2
- Men's K2 200 and C1 200 metres will not be contested in Tokyo, allowing the introduction of the new races for women
- For the first time there will be male and female event parity on the canoe sprint program
- The men's K4 1000 has been changed to K4 500
- 51 countries will compete in canoe sprint in Tokyo – the highest number ever (the previous highest was 50 countries in Beijing in 2008)
- Belize will be making its Olympic canoe sprint debut
- Only four countries have competed in canoe sprint at every Games since 1936 – Belgium, Denmark, France and Sweden
- There will be 249 athletes competing in Tokyo, two more than Rio but less than the record 317 athletes who competed in Atlanta in 1996
- Four individual medalists from Rio will be defending their titles in Tokyo – Liam Heath (GBR) K1 200; Sebastian Brendel (GER) C1 1000; Lisa Carrington (NZL) K1 200; Danuta Kozak (HUN) K1 500
- Germany's Ronald Rauhe will compete at his 6th Olympics. He made his Games debut in Sydney in 2000
- There will be nine teenagers competing in Tokyo, with Kohl Horton from the Cook Islands, who turned 17 in May, the youngest
- The oldest canoe sprint paddler in Tokyo will be Kazakhstan's Nataliya Sergeyeva, who turned 45 in May
- For the first time a refugee athlete will compete in canoe sprint, with former Iranian paddler Saeid Fazloul selected in the IOC refugee team

ATHLETES TO WATCH

MEN'S K1 200

HEATH, Liam (GBR) – Reigning Olympic gold medalist, two-time ICF world champion, has dominated this event since the Rio Olympics.

BEAUMONT, Maxime (FRA) – Silver medalist in Rio, has experimented at other distances since 2016 but is best over the short distance.

CRAVIOTTO, Saul (ESP) – Bronze medalist at the Rio Olympics, silver medalist at the London Olympics.

WOMEN'S K1 200

CARRINGTON, Lisa (NZL) – Unbeaten over 200 metres since 2011, the two-time Olympic gold medalist looks to have become even faster.

WALCZKIEWICZ, Marta (POL) – Silver medalist at Rio Olympics, regular minor medalist at world championships.

JORGENSEN, Emma (DEN) – Silver medalist from the 2018 ICF world championships.

WOMEN'S K1 500

KOZAK, Danuta (HUN) – Chasing her third consecutive Olympic gold medal. Form leading into Tokyo not as strong, but will still be the one to beat.

CARRINGTON, Lisa (NZL) – Reigning world champion from 2019, also won the title in 2015. One of four events the New Zealander has entered.

KHUDZENKA, Vulha (BLR) – World champion in 2017, silver medalist in 2019, is a very consistent paddler.

MEN'S K1 1000

KOPASZ, Balint (HUN) – Became world champion in front of his home crowd in 2019. One of the most improved over this distance.

PIMENTA, Fernando (POR) – Became world champion in front of his home crowd in 2018. Bronze in 2019, silver in 2017.

DOSTAL, Josef (CZE) – Silver medalist in Rio in 2016, silver medal at 2019 and 2015 world championships, is long overdue for a major win. World champion in 2014.

SCHOPF, Jacob (GER) – Never been to the Olympics, never contested a world championships in the K1 1000, but is the exciting young athlete everyone will be wary of in Tokyo.

MEN'S K2 1000

HOFF/SCHOPF (GER) – The combination of experience through Hoff, and speed and strength of Schopf, proved a winning combination at the 2019 ICF world championships.

CUBELOS/PENA (ESP) – Silver medalists at the 2019 and 2018 ICF world championships.

WOMEN'S K2 500

KOZAK/?, (HUN) – Whoever Kozak partners with in this event, they will be one of the crews to watch. This was one of three gold medals Kozak won in Rio in 2016

KHUDZENKA/LITVINCHUK (BLR) – World champions in 2019, have been steadily improving in recent seasons.

CARRINGTON/REGAL (NZL) – World champions from 2017, Covid has robbed us of a chance to see how they have progressed. Any boat with LC in it is going to be a threat.

MEN'S K4 500

GERMANY – The Germans were the quickest to adapt to the new distance for the K4, and have been undefeated at a world championship level since Rio.

SPAIN – Have been runners-up behind the powerful Germans at every world championships since 2017. Finally conquered them at this year's ICF world cup.

WOMEN'S K4 500

HUNGARY – Have dominated this event at an Olympic and world championship level. Gold in London and Rio, and unbeaten world champions since 2017.

BELARUS – Bronze medalists in London and Rio, silver medalists at the 2019 ICF world championships.

POLAND – Bronze medalists at the 2019 and 2018 ICF world championships.

NEW ZEALAND – Silver medalists at the 2018 world championships, bronze medalists at the 2017 world championships.

MEN'S C1 1000

BRENDEL, Sebastian (GER) – two-time Olympic champion has not been at his best form in recent times, but is experienced enough to time his Olympic campaign to perfection.

QUIROZ DOS SANTOS, Isaquias (BRA) – silver medal at the Rio Olympics, world champion from 2019.

FUKSA, Martin (CZE) – World championships silver medalist, behind Brendel each time, in 2018, 2017, 2015, 2014.

WOMEN'S C1 200

VINCENT-LAPOINTE, Laurence (CAN) – Five-time ICF world champion, has dominated this new Olympic event since 2011.

HARRISON, Nevin (USA) – American teenager won world championships in 2019, followed up with world cup win this year.

ROMASENKO, Olesia (RUS) – World championship silver medalist from 2019, 2018 and 2017.

WOMEN'S C2 500

VINCENT-LAPOINTE/VINCENT, (CAN) – World champions from 2018 and 2017.

XU/SUN, (CHN) – World champions from 2019.

BALLA/TAKACS, (HUN) – World championship silver medalists from 2019 and 2018.

MEN'S C2 1000

BRENDEL/HECKER, (GER) – The world's best canoe paddler for the past decade teamed up with Tim Hecker to win world cup gold this year, and qualified for Tokyo. Watch this space.

QUIROZ DOS SANTOS/DE SOUZA, (BRA) – Silver medalists in Rio, bronze medalists at the 2019 ICF world championships and gold medalists in 2015. Very consistent.

TORRES/JORGE ENRIQUEZ, (CUB) – Silver medalists at the 2019, 2018 and 2017 ICF world championships.

LIU/WANG, (CHN) – Won world championship gold in 2019, making them the international form crew.

CANOE SPRINT AT THE OLYMPIC GAMES

Canoe sprint made its first appearance at the Olympics in 1936 in Berlin, and has been in every Olympics since.

The Olympic program has undergone many changes since 1936, with several new events added and some discontinued. Tokyo 2020 will be no different, with women's C1 200 and C2 500 added, while the men's K2 200 and C1 200 have been removed from the program. This will allow canoe sprint to be gender equal for the first time. Women began Olympic canoeing in 1948, but competed only in kayaks.

The events are identified by codes. The code indicates the type of canoe (K = kayak, C = canoe), the number of canoeists (1, 2, or 4), followed by the distance (200, 500 or 1,000 metres). For many years, sprint canoe races were contested over 500 or 1,000 metres, but 200 metre races were added to the Olympic program in 2012.

A total of 42 countries have won canoe sprint Olympic medals. Hungary has won the most medals (74), but Germany, with 30, have won the most gold medals. Seven countries have won just one medal.

Germany's Birgit Fischer-Schmidt is the most successful Olympic canoe sprint athletes, winning eight gold and four silver over six Games.

Canoe sprint and rowing often share the same venue at Olympic Games, with rowing taking place in the first week of competition and canoe sprint in week two.

CANOE SPRINT BY THE NUMBERS

1936 – The year canoe sprint was first officially included on the Olympic program. Sprint had been a demonstration sport in 1924, but joined the show for good 12 years later.

249 – The number of athletes set to compete in Tokyo, two more than Rio but well short of the record 317 athletes who competed in Atlanta in 1996.

94 – The number of medals won by the three German teams

51 – The record number of countries who will compete in Tokyo.

48 – years and 300 days – the age in which Australia's Martin Marinov competed at the 2016 Rio Olympics.

45 – The age of Kazakhstan's Nataliya Sergeyeva, the oldest athlete set to compete in canoe sprint in Tokyo.

42 – The number of gold medals won by the three German teams.

42 – The age of Germany's Birgit Fischer when she won her final Olympic gold medal. 24 years earlier she also became the youngest athlete to win a canoe sprint gold, at age 18 in 1980 in Moscow.

17 – The age of Kohl Horton from the Cook Islands, the youngest athlete registered to compete in canoe sprint in Tokyo.

15 – years and 218 days – the age when Francine Fox competed for the USA at the 1964 Olympics.

12 – The number of medal events to be contested in Tokyo.

9 – The number of teenagers who will be competing in canoe sprint in Tokyo.

8 – The record number of Olympics for Josefa Idem Guerrini, who went to the 1984 and 1988 Games with West Germany, and then every Games from 1992 to 2012 with Italy.

8 - Number of gold medals won by Germany's Birgit Fischer, over six Olympic Games. If not for the 1984 boycott, she would have had seven Olympic Games.

7 - The number of countries who have won just one Olympic medal in canoe sprint.

7 – The number of gold medals won by New Zealand, the highest for a nation outside of Europe.

5 – The number of gold medals won by Hungary's Danuta Kozak, making her the most successful athlete to compete in canoe sprint at the Tokyo Olympics.

4 – The number of canoe sprint events which have been at every Games so far – men's K1 and K2, and C1 and C2 1000 metre races.

4 – The number of events set to be contested by New Zealand's Lisa Carrington in Tokyo. No canoe sprint athlete has ever won more than three medals at a single Games.

3 – The number of gold medals won by Hungary's Danuta Kozak at the Rio Olympics in 2016.

1 - The number of countries making their first Olympic Games appearance in canoe sprint in 2020. Welcome to the club, Belize.
