Travel informations

How to access Vaires-sur-Marne ?

Paris-Charles-de-Gaulle International Airport, located in Roissy-en-France, is the leading French airport, the 2nd European hub and 10th worldwide in terms of passengers.

More than a hundred airlines operate from Paris-Charles-de-Gaulle airport, serving around 330 destinations in nearly 120 countries.

The airport attracts international customers to the Seine-et-Marne department.

The department has 2 TGV stations at Roissy and Chessy. They provide direct access to train lines, RER and even to Roissy airport. These stations serve French and European destinations.

The Seine-et-Marne railway network has a total of more than 80 stations throughout the region, which are served by 4 RER lines (A, B, D, E) as well as 3 transilien lines (K, P, R) with direct links to Paris.

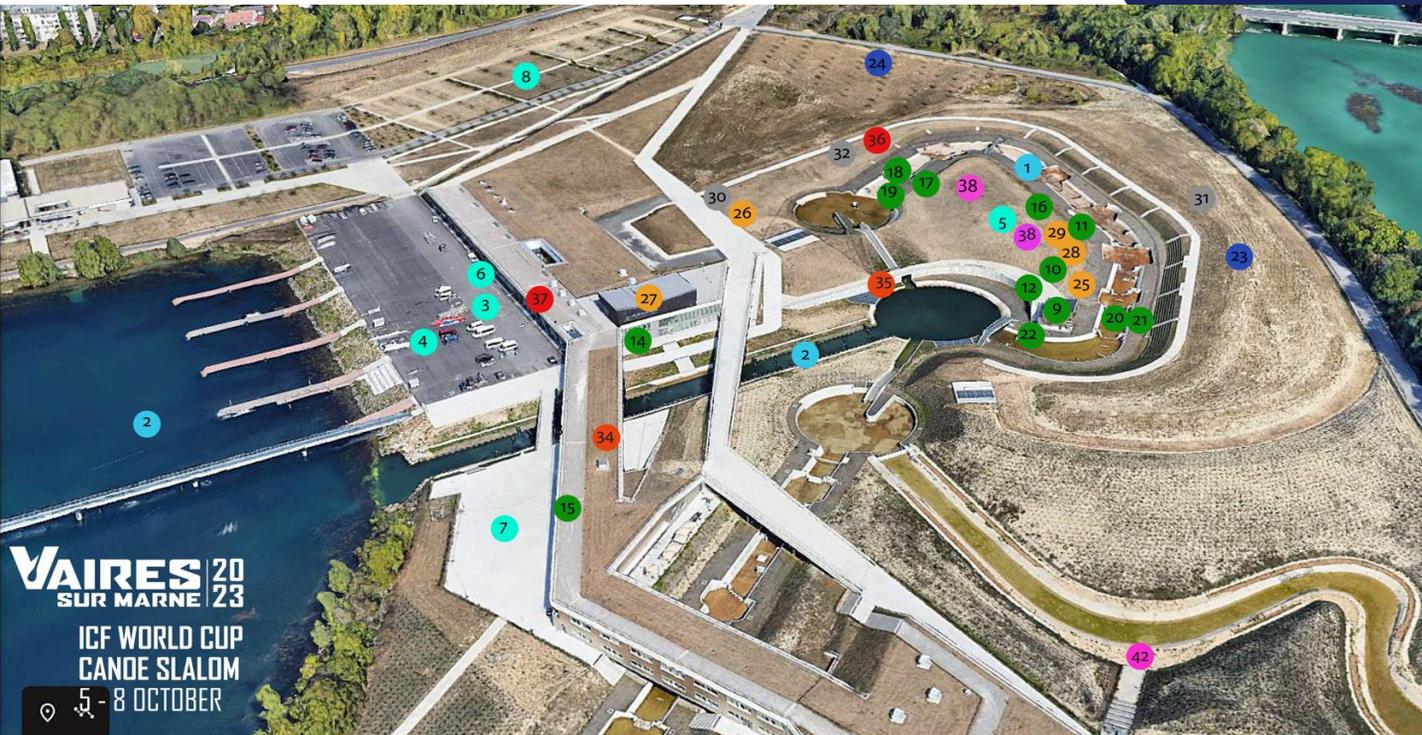

The road network in Seine-et-Marne reflects the good accessibility of the region and is the primary means of travel for users.

The main routes (215 km of motorways and 196 km of national roads), mainly directed towards Paris, are complemented by a fairly dense network that favours local services. Numerous inter-city bus lines provide public transport services in the area, particularly the 14 Seine-et-Marne Express lines.
